Apparently Ford Motor Strike Can't Be Halted

By CHARLES C. GAIN

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union struck the Ford Motor Co. today.

Members walked out as company and union negotiators talked past the 10 a.m. strike deadline.

All reports said a final agreement could be expected any minute.

UAW President Walter Reuther returned to the talks with the statement that he expected it would be his last visit to the conference table. "We are very near agreement," he said.

Reuther said earlier this morning that Ford had improved its offer.

John S. Bugas, Ford's vice president for industrial relations, described the latest company move as not a new offer but rather a refining and modifying process.

Carl Stellato, president of the 50,000-man Ford Local 600, biggest in the UAW, left the bargaining table shortly before the strike deadline. At the huge Rouge plant he told some 6,000 workers the strike is on.

Throughout the vast Ford empire, walkouts began from midnight on, affected as the deadline time moved westward across the time zones.

Stellato told newsmen the strike was on and said he had received reports that walkouts were beginning at Rouge.

Stellato told newsmen that the company had proposed a settlement of the retroactive pay issue, one of the major points at issue in the long negotiations, by offering to make its contract effective as of Jan. 1. Ford workers had been without a contract since the old pact ran out June 1 and the union had demanded that any new agreement be retroactive to that date.

Stellato also said Ford had offered to increase its base pensions from $225 to $235 for each year of service. It also offered to continue the annual improvement factor, which gives workers six cents an hour or 2½ per cent of their hourly wage, whichever is greater.

The improvement factor is related to technological advances due to automation and other developments.

Stellato said another unresolved issue is plantwide seniority. This is the setup under which the union maintains that a man employed at a factory should have seniority in another department in the same factory if his own department is

Heavy Damage in Accident Here

At 18th and Walker Streets yesterday autos driven by Mrs. Jack Lowe and Mrs. Carrie Walker, collided with heavy damage resulting to both vehicles. Nobody was injured.

Poultry to Play Big Part in Livestock Show

Southwest Arkansas' rapidly expanding poultry industry will considerably bolster the array of exhibits and displays at the 14th annual Third District Livestock Show opening here Monday, Frank Douglas, president, and B. N. Holt, manager, told the Hope Kiwanis club yesterday.

Appearing as joint speakers before the Kiwanians, Mr. Douglas said that Cornbelt Hatcheries, Inc., either concerns and individuals in the poultry and egg production business, planned to show off top quality poultry with exhibits and displays expected to attract wide attention.

Mr. Holt pointed out that probable the largest exhibit of registered hogs ever seen at the show will be entered by a Thornton, Ark., hog producer who hopes to win top prizes.

Already more registered beef and cattle have been entered than was on display at last year's show, the speaker said.

Declining Debt Cited

Mr. Douglas, serving his second year as president of the 18-county organization, reviewed the financial status of the association, and pointed to its declining debt.

"Only a few years ago, we were faced with a debt of more than $20,000 and there were rumors that the show would fold and be moved elsewhere. I am happy to report that today the debt has been reduced about $18,000 and there only remains around $2,000. With fair weather and good crowds next week, we hope to wipe out the balance."

"At the same time, with the aid of state money and some hard work on the part of interested livestock officials, more than $25,000 in permanent improvements have been made at the coliseum."

"With these added improvements, the big arena is now used by a number of other community organizations some of which are the various schools, boy and girl scout gatherings, Kiwanis club, church meetings, broiler production meetings, wildlife association meetings, Junior chamber of commerce activities, annual telephone company meeting, the annual Sun-Ray Oil company gathering, pony auctions, and still other activities."

"The coliseum has been turned into a virtual community center, and one which we all should be proud of," Mr. Douglas declared.

Weekly Program

Mr. Holt, manager of the show, announced that the annual event would get underway next Monday night with a rural, town and country made up of 4-H clubs and 7-EF chapters of Southwest Arkansas. On Tuesday night, Joe Roper and his Melody Boys, will present a musical program. The Monday and Tuesday shows will be free, with only an admission at the main gate.

The other four nights will be devoted to the rodeo which will be staged by Lester Davis, a Texas rodeo producer. On Saturday night, a shetland pony, bridle and saddle value at $50 will go to some lucky youngster.

Guests Shows will provide the carnival attraction.

Steel Union Fight Brought Into Open

By JOHN MOODY

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The United Steelworkers today suspended rules of its ninth constitutional convention so it could take up immediately constitutional matters and bring a simmering fight to the floor.

David J. McDonald, president of the 1,200,000 member union stepped to the stage of the convention and said "I accept the challenge."

McDonald said if there is any one in the convention opposed to the present leadership they will be given a chance to speak.

The statements were directed to members of a dues protest committee that has been speaking out against the USW leaders outside of the convention hall.

The committee is headed by Donald C. Rarick, a McKeesport, Pa., mill worker who opposed McDonald in the last international election but lost by a nearly 2-1 vote.

Probers Told Hoffa Votes Mostly Illegal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate Rackets Committee investigation testified today more than half of the votes that elected James R. Hoffa as president of the Teamsters Union were cast illegally.

Pierre Salinger, the investigator, said he could prove by the union's own constitution—illegality of 56.2 per cent of the votes for Hoffa at an international convention in Miami last October.

Salinger's testimony was given only a few hours after the Teamsters Executive Board called for an admitted move to rid itself of court-named supervising monitors.

The monitors promptly announced they will seek a court order to halt the move and to give them more authority in ordering what they consider needed reforms in the scandal-ridden union.

Hoffa, announcing the board's action, described it as an effort to end the monitors. He said he expects little or no opposition to his reelection as president.

Salinger based his charges of illegality in voting on the union's constitutional provisions governing election of delegates. Those provisions, he said, require that delegates be elected directly at membership meetings or appointed by executive boards of locals with prior approval of the membership. He noted the constitution also provides for selection of delegates after issuance of a convention call but 30 days in advance of the convention.

On the basis of those provisions, he said, only 4.8 per cent of the votes for Hoffa were definitely legal and 56.2 per cent were definitely illegal.

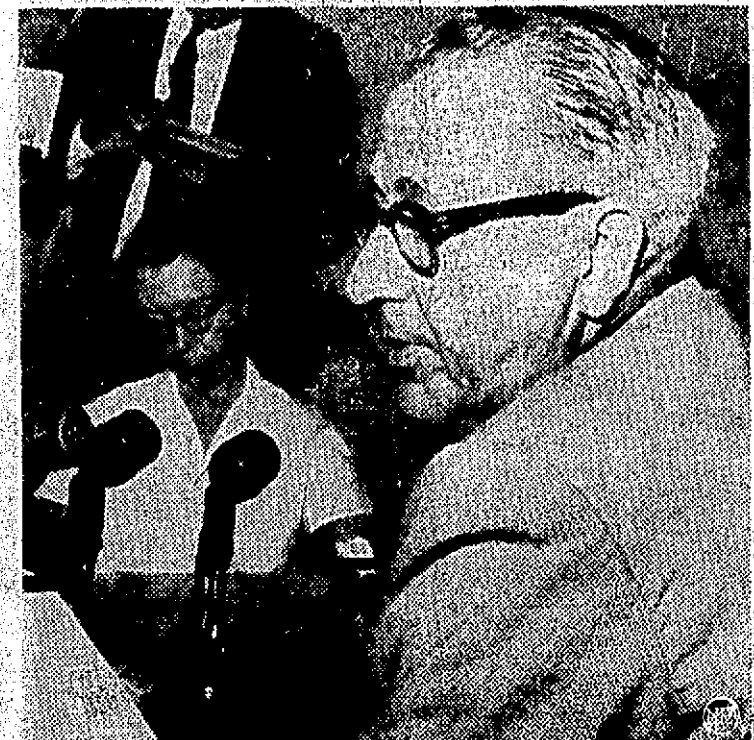

Hoffa's election was attacked in court last fall as rigged—a situation that led to the monitorship. Chief monitor Martin F. O'Donoghue called for the call for the new convention, said the Teamsters have not taken enough steps to clear up corruption to justify another convention so soon.

Reuther Is Defended by Butler

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler said Tuesday night that the author of a pamphlet attacking Walter Reuther had once called President Eisenhower a Communist.

Butler referred to Joseph Kamp of Westport, Conn., author of a pamphlet entitled "Meet the Man Who Plans to Rule America." The pamphlet is about Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers Union.

"Is the Republican party going to approve this kind of campaign?" Butler asked at a Democratic rally here. He called the pamphlet a "vicious, scurrilous attack on one of the nation's top labor leaders."

He also criticized Mrs. William F. Knowland, wife of Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) for endorsing "in an effort to promote her husband's position."

Kamp is a veteran pamphleteer for right-wing causes. He once served a jail term for contempt of Congress.

Butler didn't say when or where Kamp called Eisenhower a Communist.

Youths Terrorize Community Dance

The youths slashed tires and smashed windows of automobiles parked outside the Whiteover Civic Community House before police broke up the demonstration.

All those arrested are white, as were those at the dance.

The superintendent of the community house said the gang had been intimidating teenagers during dances all summer. Previous disturbances had been broken up before the youngsters got out of hand, he said.

Police didn't find the gun but they seized clubs and knives.

The community house is patronized by pupils from high schools on Kansas City's east side.

Ike Hopeful Pressure Will Reopen Schools

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — President Eisenhower hopes public pressure will force reopening of closed schools in Arkansas and Virginia—and so has ordered federal legal action withheld "at this time."

The President's position in the school shutdown controversy over racial integration was set forth at the summer White House late Tuesday.

After a 40-minute meeting with Eisenhower, Atty. Gen. Rogers told a news conference in connection with the wait-and-see policy the President approved: "I think it is clear to anybody that to just try to solve this problem by legal methods alone, just by law suits, is not very satisfactory."

For that reason, Rogers said in a prepared statement, the administration "is withholding a decision as to appropriate legal moves at this time."

Rogers, the government's chief law enforcement officer, made it clear there is likely to be federal legal action later if the schools closed in protest against the Supreme Court go-ahead on integration are not opened.

Rogers also talked of announced Justice Department plans to enlist the help of U.S. marshals for preservation of law and order in communities where there is resistance to admittance of Negroes to white schools.

But he did not rule out use of federal troops again. If the marshals should find themselves unable to check violence such as broke out in Little Rock, Ark., a year ago. That violence caused Eisenhower to dispatch troops to Little Rock's Central High School.

In Little Rock, Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus complained that he has always maintained that the use of federal troops is illegal. "They know it is illegal and that is why they are trying to avoid it."

Faubus ordered four Little Rock high schools closed shortly after the Supreme Court last Friday called for integration to proceed without delay at Central High. One Virginia school has also been shut down.

In Virginia, Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. commented when told of the administration hope that public pressure will force opening of the schools: "It is the old familiar technique of divide and conquer. Then in a referendum to Russia's Premier, Almond added: 'I am sure this would meet with the full applause and approbation of Mr. Khrushchev.'"

New Machine Can Help the Blind Read

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans Administration announced today development of a machine it said can read printed material to blind persons.

The sounds the device gives out are not the words of ordinary speech, but patterns of musical tones similar to the chords of an organ. The blind person must learn to interpret these sounds into letters and words.

Based on tests during the last year, the VA said a trained user ultimately should reach a reading speed of 15 to 30 words a minute. But it cautioned that both the device itself and training methods for using it must be developed first.

The entire machine is about the size and shape of a portable radio. A scanning unit, which is held in the hand and moved along a line of printed matter, throws a pattern of light on photoelectric cells. These in turn set up sound patterns which vary with the black and white of the printed words and letters.

The trial will be held in Carroll Circuit Court.

Closing Likely; Faubus Denies Any Pressure

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A federal court today ordered a white high school in Arlington County, Va., to admit four Negroes next semester and two Charlottesville, Va., schools awaited a ruling on their plea for a delay in integration.

As court action brought the threat of school closings in Virginia, Little Rock, Ark., prepared for a special election Sept. 27 on school integration. Gov. Orval Faubus who closed four Little Rock high schools advanced the special election date by 10 days.

Faubus said the earlier election date was not set in response to any public demand to reopen the schools.

The Stratford Junior High School in Arlington County, Va., was ordered by U.S. Dist. Judge Albert V. Bryan to take in four Negroes. He turned down applications of 20 others for transfer to various other white schools. The four ordered admitted will not be transferred until January. Bryan said his ruling could not be transferred into a final decree until next month and it would be unwise to make the transfer that late in the term.

Virginia law provides for immediate closing of schools for Negroes. If a delay is granted in the case of the Charlottesville schools they are expected to be closed.

In the Arlington County high school case, Bryan did not rule on the state's pupil assignment law. But he commented that assignment is not a concern of federal courts if it is done without influence of race.

In Madisonville, Ky., a 44-year-old Negro was given a five day jail term and fined $25 on conviction of threatening a white woman with a knife during a disturbance at a newly integrated school. The woman had attempted to keep four Negro students from entering P. R. de Avenue Elementary School last Wednesday.

The Arkansas school controversy brought new criticism of the Eisenhower administration from Faubus. He said the federal government hoped to avoid racial mixing in schools because "they know it is illegal."

Faubus referred to a statement issued after Tuesday's conference at Newport, R.I., between U.S. Atty. Gen. William F. Rogers and President Eisenhower concerning the school situation. He said the high school's ruling on school desegregation.

Rogers said the administration was delaying immediate action in the hope that public pressure would force reopening of schools in Arkansas and Virginia.

But he said, if local authorities did not act to reopen the schools the federal government then would take whatever legal action it could. He did not rule out the possibility of federal troops being called out again as they were in the Little Rock crisis last year.

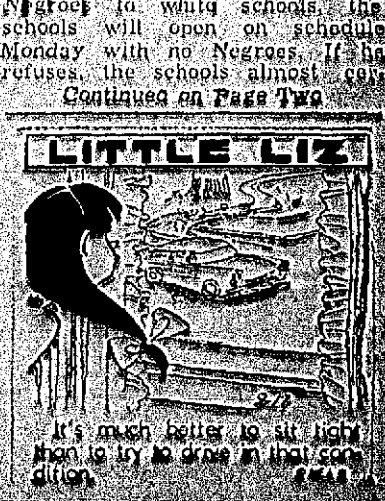

Faubus said, "I have always maintained that the use of federal troops is illegal. They know it is illegal and that is why they are trying to avoid it. But there is no way to stop the illegal use of force when that force is overwhelming."

In Virginia, Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. said this was "the old familiar technique of divide and conquer" that "this is what they've been trying to do all the time."

At Baltimore, Md. Judge James Simon E. Sobeloff deferred temporarily a decision on a request by the Charlottesville, Va., school board to delay a court order requiring two all-white schools to admit Negroes.

If Sobeloff grants a stay to the lower court, order to admit 12 Negroes to white schools, the schools will open on schedule Monday with no Negroes. If he refuses, the schools almost certainly will be closed.

THE STORY: John Lane has told Sheriff Tom Cole that his deputy Louis Scharr is now wanted by the law. Cole refuses to be influenced and warns Lane against nesters on the Four-Arrow ranch.

Chapter I

John Lane said, "You sound as though you're against Miss McKenzie. You're planning to marry her—do you want her to lose her ranch?"

Sheriff Cole again sank into his swivel chair and laid his hat down. "She's put me in a tough spot, Lane. I don't know what to do about that ranch. Being sheriff, I've got to give everybody a fair shake, or try to. And we've got courts of justice to decide things like that Tortuga Creek question."

Lane took his hip off the desk. "Well, regardless of what you've heard about me, I'm a cowhand, not a gunfighter, and I won't go looking for trouble with those grangers. I think Miss McKenzie understands that." He started out. "Boucault and Verdugo are still in town."

Lane grinned. "They won't make any more trouble for me."

"All right," Draper said. "I'll cut out the noise. Go back where you belong and mind your own business."

The woman felt the same way, obviously, for she remained silent, so Lane went back to bed.

They wouldn't have jumped me a while ago if it hadn't been for your deputy."

Sheriff Cole's mustached face showed disbelief.

The chairs and sofas in the hotel lobby were deserted, and the man behind the desk only glanced up sleepily as Lane went upstairs. Lane dozed off to sleep finally, but came awake again at the sound of footsteps and voices in the adjoining room, the room that the clerk said Ellis Draper occupied.

There was talk between a man and a woman, pitched too low for Lane to make out what they were saying, but it seemed that the woman's voice of the woman held anger.

Lane lay there and listened for half an hour or more, trying to go back to sleep again, but the conversation in the adjoining room was something that he couldn't ignore, somehow.

It wasn't Charla Mendoza in there with Draper, because it wasn't her voice. Lane decided then that the handsome banker was a ladies' man, having more than one on his string. At this moment, the woman in there with Draper cried out, not loud enough to arouse the hotel, but loud enough to get on John Lane's nerves. He swung out of bed and pulled on his Levi's. Barefooted, he let himself into the hall, and rapped sharply on Draper's door.

"What's going on in there?"

The door opened, with Draper's mustached face peering out. His own lamp light revealed Lane standing there, and he said, "What do you want?"

"You're making so much noise I can't sleep," Lane told him. He tried to peer past the banker, but Draper kept the door nearly closed and blocked the opening with his

Irma McKenzie and Ken Webster were waiting in the lobby for Lane when he came out of the hotel dining room the next morning. Rayboned and dark complexioned, Webster was eager to get back on the Four-Arrow. Lane and Lane set out to get an outfit together, eventually hiring eight men. Four of them, like Webster, were old Four-Arrow hands, and hired out with the hope they'd get a crack at the nesters. Lane made arrangements with George Finewall for saddle horses to use in rounding up the Four-Arrow remuda, and on the third day, he and Pedro Rodriguez got a six-mile team and wagon from Finewall's yard to move Irma and her aunt and housekeeper out to the ranch.

With the womenfolk established in the newly furnished ranch house and with handy-legged Henry Schultz, an old range cook, installed in the Four-Arrow cook-shack, Lane took the rest of the crew into the foothills of Laine Steer Mountain on a horse hunt, heading for an old mustang trap then that the handsome banker was a ladies' man, having more than one on his string. Facing him in the gathering twilight, the girl said, "John, I showed bad judgment in moving back here."

Lane said, "I've been thinking about that, Irma. We'll see how many helper calves we brand. If it takes all your heavy stews to pay off Colonel Richards, it might be a good idea to sell off some of your stuff. Maybe next spring you can trail a mixed herd of your own up to railroad."

He couldn't promise her anything, because a lot could happen before the coming roundup was over. Besides, Sheriff Cole, if Irma married him, would have a say in Four-Arrow affairs, and might even persuade the girl to dispose of the spread.

Did Irma really love Tom Cole? Well, she undoubtedly did, Lane told himself, or she wouldn't be all set to marry the man.

Grid Team Issue Back to Board

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus tossed back to the Little Rock School Board today the issue of football and other extracurricular activities—a touchy sidelight in the integration crisis.

Faubus said the question of permitting football, band and other activities at four closed high schools is up to the school board.

Little Rock Central and Hall High played regularly scheduled football games last week; even though there were no classes. Then, Faubus' proclamation closing the schools took effect Monday and the School Board announced that there also would be no extracurricular activities.

The board and Faubus have been at odds since the integration crisis started more than a year ago.

Yesterday the board told the governor in a telegram that its "solve motive" in stopping extracurricular activities "was strict compliance with your proclamation, closing the high schools."

"Will you please advise us immediately as to which high school activities you intended that your proclamation cover?" the board said.

Faubus' statement, made in reply to the telegram, said: "You permitted football practice and games to be played when school was not in session. That was your arrangement and you were the ones who stopped it. The schools were closed by your order when football games were played last week."

"The schools will be closed this weekend by my order, so now you say there will be no football. The decision is yours and it is your responsibility."

Before the governor issued his statement, Supt. Virgil Blossom said at a press conference that he was "sure the board would take favorable action" if the governor gave them permission to resume football and other activities.

Blossom has denied that a feud exists between the board and Faubus but the governor has charged that the school board "is working for integration."

Faubus' proclamation closed Central, Hall, Little Rock Tech and all-Negro Horace Mann High. Only Tech has no football or band. Central's football team won its 34th straight game Friday.

Negotiations were in recess at General Motors and Chrysler. Talks there will resume this afternoon with both sides obviously awaiting the outcome of the Ford talks.

Any Ford settlement would set a pattern for the other two in the auto industry's Big Three.

When old contracts ran out over the Memorial Day weekend, Reuther had backed down from an original demand that new contracts include a profit-sharing plan.

He demanded a substantial wage increase, extension and enlargement of company-financed Supplemental Unemployment Benefit payments to laid-off workers, severance payments or transfer rights for workers who lose jobs through factory abandonments or moves, and a cost-of-living increase in pensions of retired employees.

General Motors estimated the union's original demands would amount to 73 cents an hour. The union put no figure on its package, but termed GM's estimate fantastic.

Auto companies, with the exception of American Motors, were having a rough sales year.

Reuther ordered his unionists to work without a contract for the first time since 1941.

"It would," Reuther said in May, "be insane to accommodate the auto industry by calling a strike now."

Heart Attack Blamed for Rail Disaster

By ROBERT FARRINGTON

BAYONNE, N.J. (AP)—An autopsy shows that heart disease contributed to the death of the engineer of the Jersey Central train that plunged into Newark Bay.

Another finding indicates that the train's brakes were not applied until it was within 300 feet of the open drawbridge.

The third coach of the train was recovered from the water today. Bodies of three men and a woman were taken from the coach. Divers found two other bodies floating nearby.

Recovery of the six bodies brought the death toll in Monday's disaster to 27. Another 19 persons, including the train's fireman, brakeman and conductor, are missing and presumed dead.

The two engines of the train still were on the bottom of the bay.

An autopsy was performed Tuesday on the body of the engineer, Lloyd Wilburn, 63, of Red Bank.

Dr. Chester R. Rydwin, who performed the autopsy, listed the contributory causes of death as "hypertensive heart disease, pulmonary edema and congestion of the lungs."

A hypertensive heart condition is a weakened heart caused by high blood pressure. Pulmonary edema is congestion caused by fluid in the lungs which can result from a heart condition or drowning.

Dr. Francis Boyle, assistant Hudson County medical examiner, said the edema did not result from drowning in Wilburn's case.

State Board of Education Meets Oct. 15

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Financial problems will be taken up by the state Board of Education at an Oct. 15 meeting but integration probably won't be discussed, Education Commissioner Arch Ford said yesterday.

Ford said the meeting was called to review a proposed $4 million dollar education budget for the fiscal biennium starting next July 1.

He said the board is expected to deal with budget matters only.

Under Arkansas' new segregation laws, the board is charged with adopting regulations to fit segregated school systems. The Education Department is working on a tentative proposal to do this, Ford said, but the project may take several weeks.

He said that when the department completes tentative regulations governing changes in school financing and student transfers under the segregation laws, a report will go to Gov. Orval Faubus.

The board's next regular meeting will be in December soon after special school elections on millage and allied school issues.

Rocket Engine Starts But Quickly Cut

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The mighty engine of a Vanguard satellite rocket roared into action today but was cut off a split second before launching.

The Navy announced 10 minutes later that the launching was postponed because of technical difficulties. The shoot will be rescheduled in the near future.

Just as the crucial preliminary countdown reached the zero mark, a flash of red flame and smoke was seen and the bullet shaped 72-foot rocket remained poised on its launching pad.

The rocket carried a 20-inch, 21 1/2-pound satellite which housed instruments to study weather phenomena.

This was the seventh try at launching a composite three-stage Vanguard. The program has been marked by only one success. A 6 1/2 inch sphere weighing only 3 1/2 pounds was blasted into orbit March 17.

Today's launching was stymied by a series of "holds" during the countdown when minor malfunctions occurred.

When everything appeared to run smoothly, the trouble again developed and the test conductor apparently ordered that the engines be cut off just before liftoff.

There was no immediate explanation of what caused the shutdown.

Reds Ask UN to End All Atomic Tests

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Soviet Union formally proposed today that the U.N. General Assembly act at once to end atomic and hydrogen tests.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko moved as delegates gathered for the opening of the Assembly's 13th regular session. The Assembly already was faced with a crowded agenda of controversial issues and was expected to come to grips with the Korean situation before many hours.

A Soviet memorandum handed in by Gromyko charged that the United States and Britain had laid down impossible conditions in their letters of Aug. 22 in which they offered to end nuclear tests Oct. 31 if the Soviets agreed to their terms.

Gromyko proposed that the Assembly separate the questions of nuclear tests from the general disarmament problem and act upon it independently. Suspension of the tests, he said, would create conditions for the solution of other important disarmament problems.

The Soviet move came in the midst of intense diplomatic conferences on strategy.

Secretary of State Dulles met with U.S. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold to review problems before the Assembly and to get a first-hand report on Hammarskjold's Middle East trip.

Norway's Foreign Minister Halvdan Lange also conferred with Hammarskjold.

Hoffa Again Clashes With Probers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Teamster President James R. Hoffa clashed again today with the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee over use of union money to buy an automobile for an Indianapolis Teamster official.

Hoffa testified the automobile was bought in the name of Gen. Sam Soucie, president of the Indiana Teamsters conference, as part of an effort to discourage delivery of new cars from Detroit to Indianapolis by sub drivers.

"The idea, he said, was to show prospective purchasers they were buying used cars when the cars were driven from Detroit instead of being carried on trucks driven by Teamster Union members."

Chief Counsel Robert Kennedy contended the purchase in San Soucie's name, rather than for the union, amounted to "a little white lie."

"It was no lie," Hoffa said. He said he had accomplished his purpose of preventing the loss of Teamster jobs, and "I could have called it a loan" to Sam Soucie.

Hoffa said that when the car was purchased in 1954 motion pictures were made of the trip from Detroit to Indianapolis to "prove to the public they were buying used cars."

He said the car was bought for cash to conceal the union's part in the purchase. In event there should be a law suit.

He said the motion picture demonstration was not made because the dealers abandoned their eyeglass deliveries.

Kennedy said there was no record of the use of $2,000 of union money to buy the car.

Hoffa returned to the witness stand against a background of sharp criticism by the committee and union monitors that he is ducking any real corruption clean-up in the big union.

32 Students Enroll in Tech School

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A total of 32 students have enrolled in the University of Arkansas Graduate Institute of Technology for the 1958-59 term, two more than attended in the spring semester.

Raymond R. Edwards, institute director, said the number may increase since late registration will be permitted through Sept. 29 although classes begin this week.

The September 28th meeting of the University of Arkansas Razorbacks and the Baylor Bears at Little Rock will be the earliest Southwest Conference opener in history.

SEC Hasn't Closed Case About Goldfine

WASHINGTON (AP)—The chairman of the Securities & Exchange Commission said today the agency has not closed its case on the Bernard Goldfine firm which for seven years failed to file financial reports.

Asked at a House hearing whether criminal action in the case of East Boston Co. is still a possibility, SEC Chairman Edward N. Gadsby replied that the question of criminal action will be decided on the record; the matter is not closed.

Gadsby testified before the House subcommittee which earlier this year explored the relations and gift-giving between Boston millionaire Goldfine and presidential aide Sherman Adams.

The subcommittee has heard evidence that Adams inquired about the SEC case against East Boston Co., and also has heard evidence that any influence was used.

Rep. John Bennett (R-Mich.) told Gadsby that while SEC may have done half its job by finally forcing East Boston to file reports, it still has a duty to determine whether the reports are honest or dishonest.

And, Bennett said, he thinks the SEC should be interested in knowing the reason why East Boston resists filing reports.

Gadsby testified SEC is keeping its investigation open while a suit brought against the company by minority stockholders is pending in federal court, "in hopes that we can help the stockholders, or that information will come up that would be of help to us."

Daniel J. McCauley Jr., SEC associate counsel, told the subcommittee the agency has the authority to require reports on certain kinds of transactions by companies listed on stock exchanges, but not to go into the merits of the transactions, whether they should have been done or not.

It was SEC's disclosure of certain transactions by East Boston, he said, that made the stockholders' suit possible.

Gadsby sought throughout his testimony to bolster SEC's contention that it showed no favor to the Boston millionaire who was Adams' friend.

Guam Clears Up Arkansas Murder

GUAM (AP)—An information filed by the attorney general's office in the district court today charged Joseph Quilachay Matine with first-degree murder in the slaying of a civil service employee from Leslie, Ark.

Police said Matine, 21, a port laborer, admitted a bloodstained shirt to Morris, 36, when he found him on a bench with Rosalie O. Smith, 32, also a civil service worker.

Police said Matine told them he had intended to molest the woman but she fled to a nearby ranch.

Atomic Test Shot Delayed to Friday

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (AP) — A third postponement has reset the first atomic shot of the fall test series for Friday morning. The blast originally was scheduled for Monday. The Atomic Energy Commission did not give the reason for the delay. The first of 10 scheduled tests will be an explosion of a less than 10-kilowatt weapon from a balloon at 500 feet elevation. The weapon's power would be less than that of 1,000 tons of TNT.
